M. Patricia Smith

Room S-2002
Washington DC 20210

Dear Ms. Smith:

Public Citizen is writing to express its concern about the implementation and enforcement of paragraph 7 of President Donald Trump's ethics Executive Order No. 13770. Paragraph 7 of the executive order expressly prohibits former lobbyists from working in the administration on the same "specific issue area" they had lobbied within the previous two years, unless a waiver has been issued. A recent study by Public Citizen has identified that Byron Anderson, Special Assistant to the Secretary of Labor, appears to be working on the same specific issue areas he had lobbied on within the last two years, and has not received a waiver from the ethics rules.

Public Citizen requests an explanation from your office for this anomaly.

Paragraph 7 of Executive Order No. 13770 requires political appointees into the Trump administration to pledge:

If I was a registered lobbyist within the 2 years before the date of my appointment, in addition to abiding by the limitations of paragraph 6, I will not for a period of 2 years after the date of my appointment participate in any particular matter on which I lobbied within the 2 years before the date of my appointment or participate in the specific issue area in which that particular matter falls.

Using a partial list of 572 political appointees into the administration, Public Citizen has documented dozens of former lobbyists who appear to be overseeing the same specific issue areas they had lobbied in the previous two years, but only six have been recognized as such by the administration and received ethics waivers. At least 30 other appointees appear to be in violation of the executive order with no publicly disclosed waivers from the conflict of interest rule. The study is available at: <http://bit.ly/2wpZ0JV>

Paragraph 7 is a critical provision of Trump's ethics executive order designed to prevent former lobbyists from unduly influencing official actions of the administration solely in the interests of their paying clients. It is important that the White House Counsel and agency ethics officers take the necessary steps to ensure compliance to this conflict of interest rule.

The fact that so many appointees appear not to be in compliance raises serious questions about the commitment of the administration to its own ethics rules.

Public Citizen respectfully requests a response to this query at your earliest convenience.

Sincerely,

Public Citizen is writing to express its concern about the implementation and enforcement of paragraph 7 of President Donald Trump's ethics Executive Order No. 13770. Paragraph 7 of the executive order expressly prohibits former lobbyists from working in the administration on the same "specific issue area" they had lobbied within the previous two years, unless a waiver has been issued. A recent study by Public Citizen has identified that Michael Dendas, Senior Adviser, Department of Housing and Urban Development, appears to be working on the same specific issue areas he had lobbied on within the last two years, and has not received a waiver from the ethics rules.

Public Citizen requests an explanation from your office for this anomaly.

Paragraph 7 of Executive Order No. 13770 requires political appointees into the Trump administration to pledge:

If I was a registered lobbyist within the 2 years before the date of my appointment, in addition to abiding by the limitations of paragraph 6, I will not for a period of 2 years after the date of my appointment participate in any particular matter on which I lobbied within the 2 years before the date of my appointment or participate in the specific issue area in which that particular matter falls.

Using a partial list of 572 political appointees into the administration, Public Citizen has documented dozens of former lobbyists who appear to be overseeing the same specific issue areas they had lobbied in the previous two years, but only six have been recognized as such by the administration and received ethics waivers. At least 30 other appointees appear to be in violation of the executive order with no publicly disclosed waivers from the conflict of interest rule. The study is available at: <http://bit.ly/2wpZ0JV>

Paragraph 7 is a critical provision of Trump's ethics executive order designed to prevent former lobbyists from unduly influencing official actions of the administration solely in the interests of their paying clients. It is important that the White House Counsel and agency ethics officers take the necessary steps to ensure compliance to this conflict of interest rule.

The fact that so many appointees appear not to be in compliance raises serious questions about the commitment of the administration to its own ethics rules.

Public Citizen respectfully requests a response to this query at your earliest convenience.

Public Citizen requests an explanation from your office for this anomaly.

Paragraph 7 of Executive Order No. 13770 requires political appointees into the Trump administration to pledge:

If I was a registered lobbyist within the 2 years before the date of my appointment, in addition to abiding by the limitations of paragraph 6, I will not for a period of 2 years after the date of my appointment participate in any particular matter on which I lobbied within the 2 years before the date of my appointment or participate in the specific issue area in which that particular matter falls.

Using a partial list of 572 political appointees into the administration, Public Citizen has documented dozens of former lobbyists who appear to be overseeing the same specific issue areas they had lobbied in the previous two years, but only six have been recognized as such by the administration and received ethics waivers. At least 30 other appointees appear to be in violation of the executive order with no publicly disclosed waivers from the conflict of interest rule. The study is available at: <http://bit.ly/2wpZ0JV>

Paragraph 7 is a critical provision of Trump's ethics executive order designed to prevent former lobbyists from unduly influencing official actions of the administration solely in the interests of their paying clients. It is important that the White House Counsel and agency ethics officers take the necessary steps to ensure compliance to this conflict of interest rule.

The fact that so many appointees appear not to be in compliance raises serious questions about the commitment of the administration to its own ethics rules.

Public Citizen respectfully requests a response to this query at your earliest convenience.

Sincerely,

Dear Ms. Horton:

Public Citizen is writing to express its concern about the implementation and enforcement of paragraph 7 of President Donald Trump's ethics Executive Order No. 13770. Paragraph 7 of the executive order expressly prohibits former lobbyists from working in the administration on the same "specific issue area" they had lobbied within the previous two years, unless a waiver has been issued. A recent study by Public Citizen has identified that Andrew Smith, Adviser in the Department of Treasury, appears to be working on the same specific issue areas he had lobbied on within the last two years, and has not received a waiver from the ethics rules.
